No Letting Go is an award winning feature drama that follows one family's journey to understand and to cope with the erratic behavior and emotional instability of their middle son, Tim.

The family's world starts to unravel as they discover that their son's increasing fragility is due to mental illness.

Tim's painful, yet invisible, struggle takes its toll on his parents and the well-being of his two brothers. Anger, resentment, and conflict arise as Tim's parents desperately search for answers.

His family must play an integral role in finding the help he needs, but will it be too late? Will love, strength and courage prevail to reveal the resiliency of the human spirit?

"No Letting Go is a...master class. Its message of not letting go, never giving up, is one we all need to hear and see."

Lloyd Sederer, Medical Director, Huffington Post & Medical Director, New York State Office of Mental Health.

Randi Silverman, CEO, The Youth Mental Health Project

Hosting a Q&A with Randi will help your audience explore and deconstruct the film, its inception and its purpose.

Questions from the audience often pivot toward a broader conversation about mental illness and identity in our society, and how the film might reflect broader trends and others' experiences in relation to mental illness.

Randi's own experiences have enabled her to balance and bring comfort into an often silent and uncomfortable topic.

Poised and factual, Randi's message is powerful and ignites change.

Powerful and compassionate, No Letting Go is ideal for parents, guardians, educators, schools, doctors, nurses, clergy, law enforcement, therapists, coaches, youth workers, grandparents, siblings, teens and young adults.
